Galway Group LP Acquires Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates

Houston, Texas—Galway Group, LP (Galway), an international energy advisory and investment banking firm, today announced that it has acquired Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates, (BSA) a leading consulting firm providing expert economic and technical analysis of energy projects, regulatory support and market development.

“Ben and his team bring complementary skills to Galway, enabling us to offer a scope of energy advisory services that is unparalleled in the industry,” said H.J. “Hal” Miller, Managing Director of Galway. “His team’s in-depth macro and micro economic analyses enhance Galway’s existing capabilities so we can provide our clients with even more valuable advice and effective insights.”

The 25 year old BSA organization will remain headquartered in the Washington, D.C. area and maintain its name as Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates, LLC. BSA founder Benjamin Schlesinger, PhD, will continue to serve as president of BSA, and will join the Galway Group management team as a Managing Director and partner.

“This is a great match. I’ve never seen as much responsibility and experience represented around a table at any energy advisory firm as exists at Galway,” said Dr. Schlesinger. “Galway and BSA clients are already benefiting from the expanded service offering this relationship provides.”

About Galway Group

Headquartered in Houston, Texas, the Galway Group is a team of experienced energy advisors that delivers insightful industry knowledge and practical commercial and operational assistance related to project development and implementation; financing and capital structuring; and market research and analysis to public and private energy interests around the world. ## More About Galway

Founded in 2003, the Galway Group combines the strengths of Galway Energy Advisors, Galway Capital, and now Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates. Through these entities, clients can obtain an objective and thorough assessment of a project's commercial and operational viability as well as its risks. Galway is comprised of former executives and decision makers from the energy industry's upstream and midstream sectors who know how to get deals done. The Galway team has particular breadth and depth in the international natural gas and power industry, including extensive experience in liquefied natural gas (LNG) projects and LNG markets. Galway clients have at their disposal a deep bench of experts to help negotiate the deal and implement strategy. The Galway team has hands-on experience from both sides of the negotiating table and all along the energy value chain. They work alongside their clients to see deals through from commercial assessment to planning, development and operational implementation.

The combined capabilities of Galway and BSA can provide companies operating in the energy sector a broad range of services, including:

- Industry analysis and research
- Strategy development and implementation
- Valuations and financial analysis
- Due diligence, commercial and operational assessments
- Contract negotiation support
- Commercial structuring
- Capital structuring
- Debt and equity private placements
- Regulatory and litigation support
- SEC registered/FINRA regulated broker-dealer
